SUBJECTS OF INTEREST TO FRUIT GROWERS AND GARDENERS.

Instructive Facts About Narcissus with Suggestions in Relation to Its Culture. Queen Ann's Double Daffodil-A Rare Sort Adapted for Foreing.

Narcissus-or as these flowers of the poet are more commonly termed-daffodils, are most useful for furnishing blooms in the early spring months for out of doors and during the winter by forcing. They are mostly hardy with the exception of the polyanthus section. The last named, by the bye, are invaluable for forcing and may be grown either in pots or in glasses. These flower early and the flowers are exceedingly fragrant. A valuable sort among the single varieties for forcing is the Stella. This variety also succeeds well in the garden whenever it is given a compara-tively dry spot in which to grow. It has a white flower with a golden cup. Numbered with rare and handsome double narcissus is the one depicted in the cut and described as follows in Popular Gardening:

QUEEN ANN'S DOUBLE DAFFODIL Queen Ann's daffodil belongs to the Queen Ann's danodil belongs to the trumpet section of the family, a fact hardly to be suspected by the engraving annexed, for it is so full in respect to multiplication of parts that the normal form is quite disguised. The blooms form is quite disguised. The blooms have the star shape shown in the engraving, the sections of the perianth being arranged in regular layers of six parts. The color is a pale lemon yellow and the plant is dwarf. In common with all the smaller growing daffodils this variety prefers a rich dry loan. this variety prefers a rich, dry loam abounding in sand, but no rank manure of any sort. The position should be fairly sunny; the bulbs should be set not too deeply. It is an exquisite variety for forcing in a cool pit, this being indeed the treatment from which in our climate the best results should be expected. A deep, moist soil is the one chief requisite for obtaining a free growth and abundant bloom of the larger varieties, while the smaller kinds prefer a dryer soil. All love a humid atmosphere.

Keeping Cabbage in Winter. There are two methods of storing cabbage which we have found satisfactory. One is to select a high piece of ground to afford natural drainage. A light mat or bed is made with dry straw, about the width of two cabbage heads and as long as may be desired. The cabbages are pulled up, carefully carted to this place, and then, having the outside leaves neatly closed against the heads, the plants are placed roots uppermost on the straw, and as closely together as possible, making two compact rows. A few inches of straw are put carefully on the cabbage, and earth is thrown on gradually to the depth of about a foot, drawing in the roots to form the top of a ridge. The earth is taken alongside of the row, thus affording additional drainage, while the mound when finished must be well packed down with the back of the spade. When this is finished a row of corn fodder is piled along each side to still further protect from the weather. This will keep off both rain and c. . if properly placed. In taking out any cabbage during winter at once cover up the row to protect the remaining heads. Another method is to plant the cabbage roots downward instead of inverting them, and then pursuing the same general plan as above. - American Agricult-

Piece or Whole Root Grafting.

The disadvantages of piece roots as enumerated by Professor Bailey before the last meeting of nurserymen, are: 1. Roots more prongy and more horizontal, i. e., surface rooting, therefore not so hardy. 2. Small growth the first year. 3. Union imperfect on pieces of roots.
4. Trees more crotched. 5. Trees apt to tip over in orchard. 6. Not so long

The advantages of piece roots, according to the same authority, are: 1. Allow making more trees, 2. Hasten cheap multiplication. 3. Allow of deep and consequent rooting of scions of value in the northwest where it is good, even for stone fruits, the Chickasaw plum being used for grafting peaches. 4. Enable us to increase rapidly our stock of rare plants, of which we cannot get seeds or cuttings. The advantages of whole roots are briefly summed up as follows: 1. Better, deeper and finer roots. 2. Have more force, therefore get larger trees. 3. Budding on whole roots is the best in nearly all cases where hardiness is not of special importance.

The Otahelte Orange. Among the desirable and little known plants for the window garden is the Otaheite orange, a dwarf growing orange tree of remarkable beauty. It will flower and ripen its fruits perfectly in a two inch pot, claims American Agriculturist. It is not rare where these diminutive grange trees bear from twenty to thirty flowers and a few ripe fruits at the same time. The fruits remain several months on the plant, which, after being shifted into a larger pot, again blooms with a fair prospect of another

Have you no friends neross the way?" My little city durling said:
"And when there comes a rainy day, Can't you look out, and nod your head To some one clay, as I can do To Will and Fred and baby Sue? I beard you tell mamma today You had no friends across the way."

"But I have friends-dear friends," I cried, With quick, remorseful thought of home "A band of brothers, slife by side, To greet me if I go or come. How dear they are, I cannot say: Nor how it cheers me day by day To see across the valley far, How str ng and beautiful they are:

"And you should see the robes they wear; Then rainbow tinted, yet more fair, Or ermine wraps with silver sheen But yet I think I love them best When, all in somber shadows drest. Their broken ranks in silence lie Beneath the solemn midnight sky

"Sometimes a misty curtain drawn Between us hides these friends from me. But when at summet it is gone, Dear child, how fair the sight I see! For where the nearer ranks divide, The gates of glory open wide; And lo! in that unearthly light The farther hills transfigure 1 quite; While yet another and another Peeps o'er the shoulder of his brother, And smiles through rosy mist and seems to say, Heaven lies beyond us -such a little way

"Such friends are nice," she softly said, "For any one as old as you; And when I'm old and you are dead, Perhaps I'll go and see them too. But now I'd rather watch to see Children across the strest from me;
And nod to Will, ani play peep-bo
With canning little baby Sue."

Almost every one has made his jest about the proneness of doctors to disagree, the one prescribing exactly an opposite course from that ordered by another; but not every one has had an opportunity to conduct such an experiment as was made by the late Baron Lutz, formerly prime minister of Bavaria.

The baron was once severely wounded in battle in both legs. The wound in one leg was much like that in the other. It struck him that here was a chance to study the ways of the surgical profession and beguile the long hours of his convalescence. He accordingly called in one doctor and gave him charge of his right leg, but told him nothing about the wound in the other, and then called in another surgeon for his left leg, keeping him similarly in ignorance about the wounded right leg.

The doctors adopted a very different method of treatment, but both wounds healed at about the same time. When the baron's legs were quite well he derived a great deal of amusement from getting the doctors together and mystifying them with questions about the way each had treated "his leg."—Youth's Curious Old Indian Signs.

About five miles above Morven is a mystery which the people of that com Henry snuggled into his pillow for anmunity cannot explain. It must be that they are Indian signs, relics of by gone days, when the savage warrior was lord of all he surveyed. - Macon (Ga.) Telegraph.

Rich Puyallup Indians.

There are scores of Indians on the reservation worth from $50,000 to $250. 000 each, and when the reservation is thrown open by congress, as it will be in a very few years, there will be in Pierce county a dozen or two of the richest Indians in the United States. Following are the names of some of the wealthy Indians:

Mrs. Joseph Douette, a full blooded Indian widow, with $250,000; Chris Laughlet, a widower, with 120 acres and $60,000; Joe Coates, 130 acres and $80. 000, and the Coates family, worth $128,-000, are some of the richest.—Puget Sound News.

Hebrew Choirs.

In such of the Hebrew synagogues of this town as employ paid choirs many of the singers are Christians who are totally unacquainted with the Hebrew tongue and alphabet. By way of aid to such members of the choir hymn books are printed in Roman letters. The language, however, is Hebrew, and the singers really sing what to them is nonsense verse. Musically, however, the result is fine and the choirs of several synagogues are famous. - New York Let-

Temate Poisoning.

A singular disease has just been called to notice by a prominent physician. It is a form of recession of the gums of the superior molars, which is said to be due to the use of tomatoes as food. Great sensitiveness is manifested along the line of recession, similar to that of an exposed nerve. The only remedy has been found to be abstinence from tomatoes. If the disease continues the teeth fall out; not usually more than one being lost in a season. - New York Commercial Advertiser

MR. PEDDICORD'S DAY IN BED.

He Takes the Doctor's Advice and Obtains Some Interesting Results. "I think I'll stay in bed today," remarked John Henry Peddicord when the alarm clock went off at 7 a few mornings ago. "I don't feel very well, and I read a few days since an article by a prominent physician, in which he said that if people would go to bed and stay there a whole day in every month, and keep quiet, they would live and destroying 100 lives.

to a good old age."
"Well, I think I would," said Mrs. John Henry Peddicord encouragingly. "You have been complaining of a severe headache for several days, and I have become quite anxious about you." So John Henry turned over on his pillow and settled himself for his unwonted

He had just got to sleep again when the baby woke up. The baby had not read the learned article by the promi-nent physician, and it would have had no effect on her if she had. She was opposed to sleep on general principles, at any time, day or night, and only suc-cubmed at the latter time from dire necessity, when she could no longer prop her eyes open. But stay in bed all day?

Baby's waking was the signal for her mamma to rise. "John Henry, love," said Mrs. Peddicord, "as you are not going to get up, think I'll let you amuse baby while dress. The girl is busy this morning: it's ironing morning, you know. It'll be such a help.

So while Mrs. Peddicord dressed, John Henry Peddicord tried to amuse the baby, but the attempt was not a gigantic success. The baby wanted to get up and begin its day's work, but John Henry, having resolved to put into practice the prominent physician's theory, could not accede to the infant's demand, though it was supported by much heavy wailing. To assist in the general work of amusing baby, Mrs. John Henry Peddicord unloaded on the bed a varied assortment of toys. There were dolls, tin wagons, locomotives, building blocks and the

By the aid of these adjuncts to infan-tile pacification and the expenditure of more vital force than an entire day's work at the office would consume, John Henry kept the baby in a state of comparative quiet for ten minutes, and the word "comparative" is used advisedly. By this time Mrs. John Henry Peddicord was dressed. "I'll take the baby now and dress her," she said. "I'm sure she hasn't bothered you much, love. S'e's dust as dood as dold; s'e is mommer's 'ittle toddles." The second half of Mrs. John Henry's

This time John Henry's efforts to assuage the grief of his child were utterly unavailing. He endeavored to explain to her that the features of Edna, the were his efforts to point out the wonderful beauties of a "choo-choo" locomotive. But finally Mrs. John Henry came to her lord's assistance and carried off the baby, while he sat up in bed, propped with pillows, ate his buttered toast and his boiled eggs, drank his coffee, and thought that the prominent physician's and August Post, of Iowa, Secretary and idea was not such a bad one after all. His breakfast eaten, John Henry Peddicord lay and dozed and lazily dreamed for perhaps half an hour, when his wife invaded the bedroom again.

She had an idea. "John Henry," she said, "I've no end of shopping to do, and I just believe I'll go today, while you are at home. No one can take care of the baby as well as organize a party in conjunction with mind, will you, love?"

John Henry groaned inwardly. Oh, no; he wouldn't mind at all. And he didn't for a whole half hour after Mrs. Peddicord had disappeared. The baby had been fed, and for the space of thirty minutes thereafter was a model of third party would only operate to disangelic sweetness. Then came a change, however, and the infant became more exacting. John Henry performed various gymnastic evolutions on the bed for his audience of one infant, which were duly applauded until the spectator desired a change of programme and made her desire known very promptly.

After Mrs. Peddicord had been gone an hour John Henry thought this thing of staving at home to rest was a delusion and a snare, and he tried to concoct a good reason for foregoing his resolution of following the prominent physician's "To be sure," he thought, "there's that business with Sparrowgrass I ought to have attended to months ago. He lives in Frogville, fifteen miles away, over a very rough road."

John Heury Peddicord dressed himself and took the baby downstairs, where the girl was ironing.
"Norah," said he, "I'm sorry to interrupt your ministrations at the ironing board, but I find it necessary to go to the country, and I'll have to leave the baby with you. When Mrs. Peddicord returns tell her I received a telegram calling me away on very important business, and that I shall not be back before 9 or 10 o'clock to-night, and perhaps not before to-morrow morning."-William H.
